With spring just around the corner, home store Leekes introduces the new collection from Burgon & Ball.

Whether you're a dab hand with a garden trowel or prefer to sit back and relax in gorgeous garden surroundings whilst someone else does the planting up, you'd be hard pushed not to catch the gardening bug with the new season collection from gardening accessory expert Burgon & Ball.

These simply stylish accessories will add a splash of spring colour to your garden shed or utility room and are hard to resist. With gorgeous pastel coloured trugs, seed tins and herb pots now available in the range you can also organise your kitchen windowsill in preparation for growing summery herbs or to get your seeds ready for the next planting season.

"Burgon & Ball has been manufacturing garden tools since 1730 so they not only look great but are hugely practical," explains Rachel Vowles, gardening accessory buyer at Leekes.

"What I like about the range is that you can be confident that you are buying a great quality product that has been well made and well designed as products come with a no-quibble five-year guarantee against manufacturing defects.

"So you know these tools not only look good but are made for all that hard work in the garden," Rachel adds.

And with seasonal events just around the corner, these super-practical as well as stylish garden accessories from the new spring/summer 2011 collection would also make the perfect Mother's Day present or a thoughtful gift for Easter.

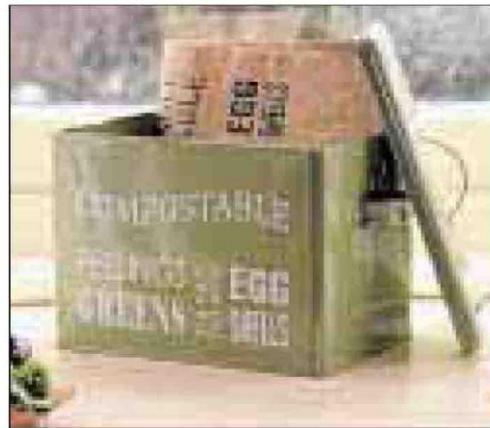

"If you know a loved one who is a keen gardener then any item from the range would make a welcome gift," Rachel says.

"Gardening doesn't get prettier than this!"
